

FIRST CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET,
FISCAL YEAR 1980

MAY 21, 1979.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. GIAIMO, from the committee of conference, submitted the following

CONFERENCE REPORT

[To accompany H. Con. Res. 107]

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 107) setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 1980 and revising the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 1979, having met, after full and free conference, have been unable to agree on a conference report because the conference decisions have changed certain budget figures outside the range in conference. As set forth in the accompanying Joint Explanatory Statement, the conferees do propose a congressional budget incorporated in a further amendment for the consideration of the two Houses.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 107) setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 1980 and revising the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 1979 report that the conferees have been unable to agree. This is a technical disagreement, necessitated by the fact that in some instances the substitute language agreed to by the conferees includes figures which (for purely technical reasons) would fall outside the range between the corresponding House and Senate provisions.

It is the intention of the conferees that the managers on the part of the House will offer a motion in the House to recede and concur in the Senate amendment to the House-passed resolution with an amendment (in the nature of a substitute) consisting of the language agreed to in conference. Upon the adoption of such amendment in the House, the managers on the part of the Senate will offer a motion in the Senate to concur therein.

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate submit the following joint statement in explanation of the action agreed upon by the managers:

The substitute language which is to be offered as described above (and which should be considered the language of the concurrent resolution as recommended in the conference report for purposes of section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974)—hereinafter in this statement referred to as the "conference substitute"—is as follows:

That Congress hereby determines and declares, that pursuant to section 304 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974:

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 4. (a) The Congress recognizes that the activities of off-budget Federal entities are excluded from the budget by law. The Congress recommends that a way be found within the Congressional budget process to relate accurately the estimates of off-budget Federal entities and capital expenditures to the unified budget.

(b) In 1979, each standing committee of the House of Representatives shall report by July 1 to the House of Representatives its recommendations and the status of its actions with respect to new spending authority including all legislative savings, and other reforms, targeted by the first concurrent resolution on the budget for the fiscal year ending on September 30 of that same year. This report shall include any additional legislative savings which the committee believes should be considered by the House in the programs for which such committee has responsibility.

In 1980, each standing committee of the House of Representatives shall include in its March 15 report to the Budget Committee of the House of Representatives specific recommendations as to all possible legislative savings for the programs for which the committee has responsibility.

In 1980, each standing committee of the House of Representatives shall include in its March 15 report to the Budget Committee of the House of Representatives an estimate of the unobligated (and unexpended) balances of budget authority, an analysis of the extent to which such unexpended or unobligated balances could reasonably be reduced, and what steps, if any, have been or are being taken to reduce such balances.

However, the conferees do not intend that this recommendation alter the goals of the Reserve program, which is an important element of U.S. national energy policy. The conference substitute reflects the possibility that the Congress may consider changes in general revenue sharing and may enact new programs of targeted fiscal assistance. The conference substitute does not reflect a precise mathematical anticipation of any particular legislative outcome, since the Congress has yet to consider any new programs or changes in existing law. As a result, the functional totals may need to be adjusted at the time of consideration of the second budget resolution.

FUTURE FISCAL YEARS

The Senate resolution provided a multi-year budget containing aggregate and functional totals for fiscal years 1980, 1981, and 1982. The House resolution contained such totals only for fiscal year 1980.

The Conference substitute includes two sets of fiscal year 1981 and 1982 aggregate totals, both of which provide for a balanced budget in 1981 and 1982.

HOUSE AGGREGATES

While the House resolution did not provide aggregate or functional totals for fiscal years 1981 and 1982, the conference substitute provides aggregate totals which project current House policy into those fiscal years. The aggregates below make no change in policy or priorities for fiscal years 1981 and 1982.

These aggregate projections have been included to show that continued spending restraint and a healthy economy can result in balanced budgets at an early date.

[In billions of dollars]

	Fiscal year 1981	Fiscal year 1982
Revenues.....	$579.8	$655.3
Budget authority.....	658.7	721.4
Outlays.....	577.7	622.7
Surplus.....	2.1	32.6
Public debt level.....	916.1	922.5

The House conferees reaffirm their commitment to try to achieve a balanced budget in fiscal year 1981.

SENATE AGGREGATES

The aggregate totals of the Senate resolution provided for budget surpluses in fiscal 1981 and 1982 and provided for a $55 billion reduction in taxes effective in fiscal year 1982.

The conference substitute itself includes aggregate totals for fiscal years 1981 and 1982.

FUNCTION TOTALS

The conference substitute does not include the functional totals because the managers on the part of the Senate and the House could not reach agreement on their inclusion. The Senate conferees believe the inclusion of these totals is necessary to comply with the provisions of the Public Debt Limit Act of 1979. The House conferees believe those provisions were met by the publication of House Report No. 96-96.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates that the effect on the Senate resolution functional totals for fiscal years 1980, 1981, and 1982 of the matters contained in the conference substitute is as follows:

The managers on the part of the Senate, pursuant to the action of the Senate in adopting its multi-year budget resolution, will urge the Senate to observe the limits for fiscal years 1981 and 1982 as if they had been incorporated in the conference substitute, in order to help assure that the Congress achieves the balanced budget provided in the Senate resolution for fiscal years 1981 and 1982 and the $55 billion tax cut provided within the balanced 1982 budget.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

The House resolution contained language relating to the activities of off-budget Federal entities. The Senate resolution did not contain that provision.

The conference substitute provides as follows:

SEC. 4. (a) The Congress recognizes that the activities of off-budget Federal entities are excluded from the budget by law. The Congress recommends that a way be found within the congressional budget process to relate accurately the estimates of off-budget Federal entities and capital expenditures to the unified budget.

The House resolution contained a provision relating to reports by House Committees regarding legislative savings and unobligated balances.

The Senate resolution did not contain that provision.

The conference substitute, like the House resolution, provides as follows:

(b) In 1979, each standing committee of the House of Representatives shall report by July 1 to the House of Representatives its recommendations and the status of its actions with respect to new spending authority including all legislative savings, and other reforms, targeted by the first concurrent resolution on the budget for the fiscal year ending on September 30 of that same year. This report shall include any additional legislative savings which the committee believes should be considered by the House in the programs for which such committee has responsibility.

In 1980, each standing committee of the House of Representatives shall include in its March 15 report to the Budget Committee of the House of Representatives specific recommendations as to all possible legislative savings for the programs for which the committee has responsibility.

In 1980, each standing committee of the House of Representatives shall include in its March 15 report to the Budget Committee of the House of Representatives an estimate of the unobligated (and unexpended) balances of budget authority, an analysis of the extent to which such unexpended or unobligated balances could reasonably be reduced, and what steps, if any, have been or are being taken to reduce such balances.

The provisions of section 4(b) do not apply to the committees of the Senate who already provide similar information in their March 15 reports to the Senate Budget Committee.
